In short, evolution means that all life on earth shares a common ancestry which can traced back to a single species. Orthodox Christians have divergent views on how to react to this development in science. In general Orthodox responses can be grouped into two large categories, which we might label Compatibilism and Incompatibilism.

Alexei Osipov, professor of the premiere Theological Academy of Moscow, put it perfectly when he said that for Holy Orthodoxy both evolution and creationism are permissible in principle. Which, if either, is true or most probable is a question of a strictly scientific order and not one of theological dogma. III.

Orthodoxy & Evolution ¶ The Soul of the East

Conclusion: Creation and Evolution. For most Orthodox, the only problem with the word 'Evolution', as applied to Creation, is the use of the word in a context which denies the Creator. If Evolution were without God, i.e, man were descended from monkeys, that is an implicit denial of God, atheism.

Towards An Orthodox View Of Creation And Evolution

Against (crypto-Protestant) ¶Orthodox¶ fundamentalism If you read Genesis 1 and believe from Genesis 1 that the world was created in six days, I applaud you. That is a profound thing to believe in simplicity of faith.

Creation and Holy Orthodoxy: Fundamentalism Is Not Enough ...

"Amidst the creation/evolution debate that is now raging, with evidence being offered for both sides, few have made use of what Fr. Seraphim Rose called the missing evidence : the timeless teaching of the Orthodox Holy Fathers on the events of creation, the first-created world, the natures of created things, the original nature of man, and the cosmic consequences of man's fall.

The impasse of ¶Orthodox¶ evolutionism / OrthoChristian.Com

"I might begin by stating that, if by evolution one is referring to the theories and teachings of Charles Darwin, the Orthodox Church surely does not subscribe to evolution in any manner.

Creationism, Evolution, and Orthodoxy ...

The Orthodox Church teaches that the Virgin Mother of God, the Theotokos, is the model of the renewal of humankind and the creation in Christ. In her receiving of the Son of God, the whole humankind and the whole of the creation participate. In the Incarnate God the Father "made known.

Orthodox Perspectives on Creation - Society Articles ...

In my estimation what current science tells us about evolution presents four main difficulties for orthodox Protestants. The first is in the area of Biblical authority. To account for evolution we must see at least Genesis 1 as non-literal. The questions come along these lines: what does that mean for the idea that the Bible has final authority?

Creation, Evolution, and Christian Laypeople - Articles ...

With many lengthy quotations from the ¶Holy Fathers¶ of Eastern Orthodoxy from the fourth century to the present, the book reinforces the assertion that a Six-Day Creation about 6,000 years ago, followed by a global catastrophic Flood, has been the historic teaching of the church until the 19th century.

Orthodoxy and Genesis: What the fathers really ... - Creation

By ¶creation science¶ is meant the view that the Genesis stories are to be taken as scientifically or historically factual, so that the earth (often considered to be comparatively young) was created by God in six twenty-four hour days. Since the time of the ¶Scopes monkey trial¶, the argument between ¶evolutionists¶ and ¶creationists¶ has been going strong, and is often fought in the nation¶s courts and departments of education.

Evolution or Creation Science? - Orthodox Church in America

Prof. Provine states that the theistic evolution theory in fact leads to deism. According to this view at the beginning God created the matter, setting in it some program, which would allow the world to self-construct itself. Later on, however, he did not interfere at all in its development, neither in human history.

Theistic Evolution - Orthodox Christianity

Orthodox Christian Theology "Fight to the death for the truth and the Lord God will fight for you." (Sir 4:28)

Evolution - Orthodox Christian Theology

Theistic evolutionists believe that there is a God, that God is the creator of the material universe and (by consequence) all life within, and that biological evolution is a natural process within that creation. Evolution, according to this view, is simply a tool that God employed to develop human life.

A "viewpoint as far from twentieth-century evolutionary naturalism as can be imagined. Readers may be inspired or outraged. Contents include a patristic commentary on Genesis, a section on the philosophy of evolution and on the doctrine of creation as well as an appendix on radiometric dating.

Genesis, Creation and Early Man: The Orthodox Christian ...

Due to their high regard for tradition and belief that what the church fathers taught was permanently valid, the Orthodox Church has not been significantly involved in the debates of the last two centuries over creation and evolution. This is beginning to change as secular and rationalist thinking has come to dominate the sciences in the West.

How Is Eastern Orthodoxy Different? | Answers in Genesis

This view appears to be rooted in two tenets of orthodox Christian doctrine - God's omnipotence and his unsurpassed wisdom. Howard van Till calls this evolutionary view of creation "fully gifted creation." 1 It is a creation that doesn't need follow-up tinkering to generate life because, well, the creation is "fully gifted."
